LOUISVILLE.

THE STRAIGHT OUT DEMOCRACY.

Great Letter from Charles O'Conor.

He Repudiates Greeley and the Baltimore Convention.

Temporary Organization Effected at Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 3.—The National Democratic Convention met to-day in the Comnon Pleas court room of the court heuse, Previous to and during the assembling of the delegates, the Second Regiment National band of biladelphia, played various airs. At about one clock Col. Duncan called the convention to Rev. Dr. Platt addressed the Throne of

Col. Duncan then spoke as follows: GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION : "It is my duty to call this assemblage to order. Its objects are well known and require no explanation. We have been derisively characterized faction of the Radical party, and who have abandoned all the principles which have hitherto characterized our organization.

No spirit of presumption or forwardness induced the gentlemen who acted with me to appeal to the American Democrats against the flagrant violation of party faith, and other negation of the principles involved in the nomination protest against the offered reward for political reason to one who had occupied a life time in the bitterest animadversion of those whose sup-

We want no more hydra-headed platforms, which can be constructed according to the wishes of the reader, for we have clear and undoubted theories which have but one interpretation, when conducted to the chair, ridiculed the whether expounded in the North or in the Greeley party as a Dolly Varden party. South. We can have no interest to re-open to the inevitable and powerless to reverse what adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrowhad been accomplished, satisfy ourselves by commendation of acts performed in the viola-tion of the constitution. [Great applause.] For two months every thought of my brain has been monopolized; every energy of my mind and body has been directed to the accomplish-ment of that object. The sincerity of my motives should await the criticism, and if there have been errors of omission or commission, they should be overlooked, for the spring of my action has been intent to do right and to aid in the preservation of the party and the perpetuation of its principles. [Prolonged applause.]

At the close of his greath D.

At the close of his speech, Duncan introduced Levi S. Chatfield, of New York, as temporary chairman. Cheers followed. Three cheers were also given for Duncan.

Chatfield was unanimously chose as chairman Spaulding, of New York, Lyons, of Virginia, Wheaton, of Michigan, were appointed a committee to conduct Chatfield to the chair. Chatfield on reaching the platform said : Gentlemen my sincere pleasure, to tender you my hearty hanks for this compliment of my selection.

He said he was born a Democrat of the Jackon-Jefferson school and he never had seen the time when he desired to abandon its principles. If we had not been sold at Baltimore we would have triumphed in November. Our assumed representatives sold us to an old white hat and coat, for that is all there is of him. [Applause.] He thought Duncan and Flanders, who protested against the sale at Baltimore, deserved

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.
To the Democratic National Convention, appoi ted to assemble at Louisville Sept. 3d, 1872: Mr. O'Conor's letter is a very long one and we condense it as follows:

He reviews at length the weak points in our system of government, and shows how the multiplication of officers increases corruption and enlangers the public safety. He refers to the startling frauds of the Tammany Ring in New York and says that all good citizens joined to suppress them. He said the reform movement promised to become National, but that the Presidential election threatened to break in upon it. He said one of the baneful tendencies of the period was ederal interference in State and local affairs.

Now of this practice, above all other living Americans, Greeley is recognized as the champion, and no body of organized opponents to it has ever existed in the country, except the Dem-ocratic party. Yet by the decree of a convention assuming to represent that party, Greeley has been gazetted as its standard-bearer. Opposition to that proceeding has, in my mind, a far deeper source than merely attachment to party.

My views of the public interest and existing oublic necessities compel me to repudiate the Baltimore nomination of Greeley. formly condemned it and declared my readiness structure 515 feet long and 71 in breadth. The great tower was of remarkable height and the conderes the meeting and A. J. Ricks, and others are expected to be prescured to be prescribed and the conderes the meeting and the conderes the cumstance has led to a supposal in some quar-ters that I had aspirations to office, and it has beauty. been suggested that my name might be offered to your acceptance as a candidate. The object of this letter is to avoid misapprehension on this point. If compelled to decide between Grant and Greeley, as candidates for the Presidency, every Democratic elector must rely very much upon mere conjecture.

Those inclining to the latter as a choice of evils, suggest that a mitigation of oppression in the South would result from his success. There may, however, be equal ground to hope for that good result in either issue of this rivalry. When once his second term shall have been secured, General Grant's only motive for inflicting misery on that portion of his country-men will cease. An effort to secure a third term, or to establish a dictatorship cannot reasonably be apprehended, and consequently comparisons of probabilities offers us merely a blank olympiad on one hand or four years of undefinable activity on the other. That wise people, whose usages we have generally followed, had occasion to pass through a transitional period somewhat similar to that glass tumbler at Frame, fracturing his From the Pittsburg Courier.) now affecting Southern interests. In their acfor a course of policy which would promptly reinstate Southern prosperity. But if there be one among the mong t one among the master spirits of the age who, drinking the blood which was copiously and bets on Greeley are as much out of the even if inclined, could not adopt that policy, it is Greeley. The success of Gen. Grant might involve no important consequences, but that of Greeley would consecrate the practices referred to, which, in my opinion, are absolutely formation of the blood which was coplously flowing from his fractured head.

incompatible with the permanence of Repub-

He then proceeds to discuss at great length the theories of protection and free trade, show-ing Greeley's anti-Democratic views on these subjects. He then suggests changes demanded by our late experience. One is to abridge the power of government to borrow money, by issuing currency or otherwise for war. The generation waging war furnishes men and ought to "pay as they go." Debts are a tax on labor and governments ought to be empowered to create them. He discusses different methods of taxation and says expenses of government should be exacted at once from tax payers, for this would insure vigilant watch on official expenditures. Paternal government is fatal to Republican. Al these things have induced me to encourage the movement which you represent, and doubtless my name will be presented for your considera-tion for a nomination. In that event I beg leave respectfully, to withdraw it. The strength and emphasis which have marked the language employed by some of the gentlemen in addressing me on this subject must be my excuse for say-ing what follows. Success should of course be the object in the present condition of affairs. Other leadership will afford a better prospect of attaining it. The choice can be made from many equally as reliable as the reformers, probably more capable of public office, and yet less likely to combine formidable elements of opposition. Grace in a prayer for concord and peace and freedom from sectional jealousies throughout the on Platform. The Committee on Credentials is as on Platform. The Committee on Credentials is as follows: New York, Van Allen; South Caro-proceedings, which at one time was rather turoulent. Vallandingham, of Kentucky, moved an adjournment until November 20th, when he of Greeley. We did it with higher and nobler motives. We did it to vindicate truth and to his friends apologised by stating that it was a practical joke. The committee on credentials reported ver-upsetting of a charcoal furnace, which was being used by some workmen who were repairing the roof of the Cathedral. LATER.—The fire in the Cathedral has been extinguished. The firemen obtained control over the flames shortly before morning, and at 12:30 o'clock they were suppressed. The engines, however, are still playing on the buildings. About 150 feet of roof was completely destroyed. Every-thing that could possibly be moved was got out of the Cathedral before the firemen commenced pouring water on it. It is hoped that when a thorough examination is made it will be found that the damage is not as serious as now appears.

LATEST. — Additional dispatches from Canterberry report that the fire in the Ca-thedral has been completely extinguished. The shrine of Thomas a' Beckett has not been injured. The Mosaic pavement of the Cathedral is covered with melted lead. The altar was deluged with water. The interior of the edifice is filled with smoke. It has been the habit for the past three hundred years to hold religious services in the Cathedral daily, and this custom was not broken up by the fire as services were held after the suppression of the flames.

THE BURNING OF CANTERBURY.

There were several monuments of historic in the cathedral, among them one of Henry IV and one of the Black Prince. Before the high altar in 1170, Thomas a' Becket was murdered. The details of this great conflagration will be looked for with interest.

By one of the most wonderful inventions of man the first report of this fire, dated at London yesterday at 11 A. M., was received at the CHRONICLE office at 1 P. M. Allowing for the difference in time, we had the news about six hours after the fire began, and while the great cathedral was still in

In speaking of our road system, Mr. Mayard said that if the raw material wasted in getting to market over our roads in their present condition could be expended upon the roads they would be in a far better condition than at present. He drew rather a comical picture of road workers under the present system, and it was a pretty true one after all. He claimed as a reason for the present bad condition of our highways the great inequality of road taxes between the rich and the poor men.

He called attention to many new and important manufactories as the result of the Republican policy and encouragement to immigration.

We might ask for cheaper labor, but cheaper labor made cheaper men, and cheap men were valueless; that men who were always compelled to battle the wolf from their door never could arrive at the true standard of manhood. Fire Alarm.

About 8 o'clock last night our citizens were alarmed by the violent ringing of the fire bell, and cries of "fire." Quite a crowd rushed in the direction the fire was supposed to be in, caught from a spark from the engine of the down freight train. The car was burning very little, though its contents consisting of dry goods, was considerably damaged by the water thrown on the fire.
